Summary of the event

Almost everyone—students and teachers alike went through a lot of physical and mental challenges during the pandemic. The transition from an online to offline mode of teaching, learning and evaluation was also a big challenge to surpass. Resilience—the ability to withstand adversity and cope up with difficult and challenging life situations is a special skill which can be gradually developed and evolved.

This was an initiative by the Department of Electronics to create an awareness among the students towards the important Life Skills such as Resilience and Self construction through introspection, self-analysis, and realization.

During the session students were given situations and their reactions were noted. The activities helped them to do self-analysis in order to identify their positive and negative traits, draw their mountain of challenges & further build a road map to their future.
