India-US Relations: Strategic Cooperation

Vikash Kumar

Introduction

Foreign policy of any country is vital part of its Development. It is perhaps a good time to examine Indo-US Relations. Recently, India's relations with the United States moved in a dramatically changes. This is not to say that there were no ups and down, of course make it. But the both country's relationship in the strategic setting of the Post-cold war era has became more and more cooperative but during the cold war, it was not fully Cooperative. Current Indo-US relations are not easy to assess. The past few years have been highly formative for the United States in foreign policy and, for India in all the fields. Now these days Gradually, India and the United states have become of increasing interest to each other. So that both countries doing work on Security, Energy, Economic, Political, Culture and also Strategic cooperation with high partnership of foreign affairs issues.
