Subject: Our Motherland India

Dear Mahatma,

I hope you are happy and healthy wherever you are right now. I am doing well. However, this letter isn't about you or me, this is about the country where both you and I were born into.

The India that you lived and the India that I live are surely worlds apart in both the way it looks and the ideology of the common people. We have an abundance of buildings in tier-2 cities that are about twice the size of the tallest buildings back in your day. There are a lot more hospitals, schools, public transport vehicles, communication systems, industries, dams, higher education institutions, and a lot of other developments which would take more than a week to note down and write. Indians are a lot more open to ideas from abroad and they also have learned to accept, love, and embrace their culture. The west and the east too, have started to appreciate our culture. Ayurveda and Yoga are now terms that have entered the day-to-day vocabulary of people from America and

CHITTHI TO Kasturba Gandhi

(This letter is dedicated to Kasturba Gnadhi a.k.a. Baa, who fought for Indian freedom but her role and her ideas remain untouched and misinterpreted. With this letter, I have tried to voice out those ideas.)

B-296, Tughlakabad Village
New Delhi- 110044

April 12, 2022

Venerable Baa,

I got to know that you with Bapu had been lodged at Aga Khan Palace and the government have been brutal in their treatment. I am deeply saddened with this news. Here, in 2022, India is celebrating 'azadi ka amrit mahotsav' and your absence in both tangible and intangible forms hurts me and reminds me of you every now and then. Baa, India today needs a leader and an activist like you. Baa, I am writing this letter to inform you about today's India, i.e. what is constant and what varies in India.

Baa, in those days, women were ill-treated and subjugated and you might think that with time, women would have been liberated, but there is a status quo with regard to women. Today, women

In the age of metaverse, here is a chance for you to not only smell the parchment and spill the ink but to talk with your idol from the Indian past! You can write a letter to anyone deceased leader who could be a freedom fighter, an activist, or a politician. Your letter should have a proper portrayal of the ideas of the leader as well as their own individual perspective. The competition will provide a platform for the young students to express their unique political ideas in an articulate way and will enhance their ability to experiment with their critical thinking skills.

Guidelines:

- Participants are required to write a letter to any deceased politician of their choice.
- There must be a proper portrayal of the ideas of the participants and the characterization of the idea of the leader as well.
- To give an example of content- You can talk about how he/she wanted India to be today and @100 and you can explain how is it actually
- The letter can be in Hindi or English. (But only one language should be maintained throughout the letter, the use of 'Hin-glish' will lead to deduction of marks!)
- Proper format of the letter should be followed.
- Please check your grammar and punctuation before submitting the entry.
- Plagiarism is strictly prohibited.
- Participants have to submit their entries through the google form provided before the deadline i.e. 8th April,2022.
- In case of any discrepancies, the decision of the organizing team will be considered final.

Rules/Judgment Criteria:

- Creativity in writing the letter
- Proper format
- Articulation of leader's and participant's own ideas
- Originality in participant's own ideas
- Grammar and sentence formation
- Adherence to the guidelines and document specifications

5. Event report Attested by Event Coordinator & IQAC Coordinator

Chitthi, a Letter writing competition was organised by Political Science Students' Association in which students were required to write a letter to their idols (a politician or freedom fighter etc.)from the past. They had to portray their own ideas as well as the ideas of the leader they are writing the letter to. The Competition turned out to be great.

Students wrote letter to their idols such as Mahatma Gandhi, Bhagat Singh, Kasturba Gandhi and Lal Bahadur Shastri etc. The students portrayed the ideas of the leaders as well as their own ideas in a very apt manner. The students also shared how they envision their country when it completes 100 years of independence. The creativity and the unique portrayal of the ideas of the students was mind-blowing. The winners were decided in both Hindi and English Category by the event Heads Pragya Pandey and Shreya Dadwal. The competition gave a chance to the students to experiment with their critical thinking ability and express their unique political ideas in articulate way.
