POSTERS-

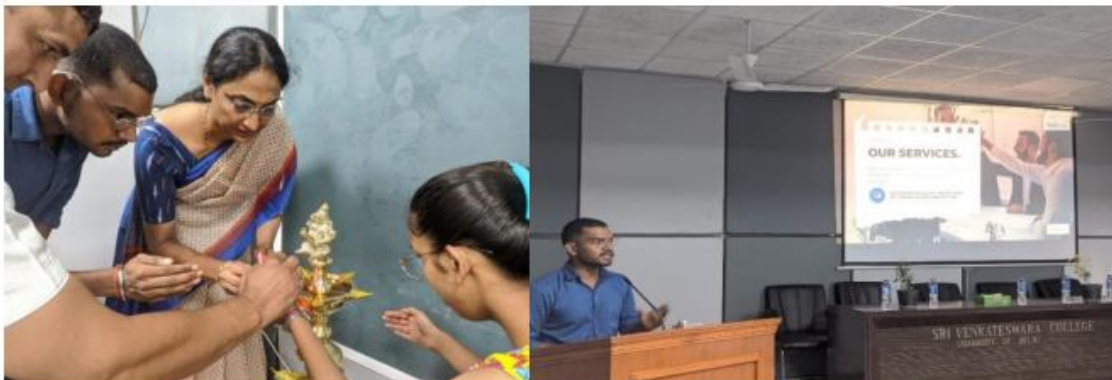

SUMMARY-

On 2nd of September, Equal opportunity cell observed the commencement of an interactive job orientation Programme and a skill development workshop for differently abled students in collaboration with "INDIC-AI : disability to distinction". The workshop began with the zest and zeal, with a brief introduction about the speakers for the programme queued by the Saraswati Vandana and lighting of the lamp by guest for the event and honorable principal mam Prof. C.Sheela Reddy. Following up was principal mam addressing the audience about she being constantly supporting the students of equal opportunity cell for their dedication for the work and bringing such interactive workshops to lend a helping hand for pwd students, with her kind words and showering of blessings for the workshop to be a successful one, the event was than officially took over by Mr.Shivakant Singh who is the executive at INDIC-AI. He thoroughly introduced students to INDIC-AI, so basically it is a non-profit transforming ability into distinction for “people with disabilities” to help them become active participants in the economy, thereby being an asset for the nation and realize their potential. INDIC-AI foundation have gained renowned heights in their field of work by their venture being selected by IIM-Bangalore for NSRCEL social incubation program among 9 other esteemed organizations aiming to bring a change in society. Mentioning for some disciplines offered include Digital Marketing course, content writing course, advanced excel course, Business Analytics, Python, Financial modeling, HR generalist course. Thus, the foundation itself includes wide variety of courses to choose from, with 250 in number totally.

The alumni from Foundation include Aakriti Goel a student of B.com professionally skilled in spoken English, Financial Modeling, Advanced excel, she worked at Nimbus and as of recent placed at Macquarie. Harsh Raj, a student of Applied economics possessing skills in spoken English, Business Analytics, Research writing and successfully placed at Bank of America. Rahul Gosain, a B.com student who did MBA as well trained in skills such as digital literacy, CAT coaching, digital marketing and placed at Microsoft.

So, briefly summing up the foundation creates pay parity jobs for students with disabilities in the corporate sector with high packages. Next up was question and answer session wherein students showed up their active participation via interacting thoroughly and getting all their doubts answered by the speaker. The workshop was a hand on approach implementing the skills, Students can choose from and providing an insight into diverse topics and motivating students to explore new areas of interest. Therefore, the workshop was fully fledged form of learning and particularly appealing for the students as they complement the ordinary curriculum based learning. With a vote of thanks for the speaker for the works and our respected principal mam, it ended formally. Hence, INDIC -AI skill development workshop intendedly was a huge step towards filling gap for pwd students in response to corporate sector outside from the conventional graduate curriculum.
