REPORT:

This activity involved embarking on an ethnographic walk in Old Delhi, particularly Chandni Chowk, by the students of DSE: Visual Culture, B.A. Hons Sociology, 6th semester. The students were equipped with ethnographic prompts before the beginning of the walk. The basic objective of the activity was to enable students to undertake an immersive ethnographic experience, reflecting on their observation skills, their ability to ethnographically describe everything around them. As the course on Visual Culture primarily argues how about the social construction of visibility and therefore the need to critically analyse and interpret how it remains connection to the production of knowledge, the field visit/ walk enabled them to utilize their skills of observation as students of sociology, connecting the individual and the social, the material and the emotional, the objective and the subjective, in a particular field, in order to transform it into a context of analysis.
