The Department of Sociology at Sri Venkateswara College recently hosted a workshop on the theme "Engaging for a Change: A Workshop on Online Security and Misinformation" from 11 AM to 12.30 PM. The distinguished speakers, Pratishtha Arora and Vikram Singh from Social Media Matters shared their expertise in online safety, drawing from their extensive experience working with notable entities such as Disney, Meta, Netflix, Google, and more. Dr. Padma Priyadarshini, the Teacher-in-Charge of the department, delivered the inaugural address, introducing the speakers and setting the stage for the workshop. Dr. Urmi Bhattacharyya, the Convenor of the event, extended a warm welcome in her opening speech creating an inclusive atmosphere that encouraged engagement. The discussion revolved around pertinent issues like online safety, misinformation, and fake news, particularly focusing on the upcoming elections in India. The speakers emphasized the need to use the internet wisely and positively, addressing aspects such as fake accounts, cyberbullying, online dating implications, and the importance of differentiating valid information from misinformation. Interactive sessions, including a communication exercise using tangram and the Moon Walking Bear Awareness Test, heightened awareness about the challenges in recognizing misinformation. The workshop also delved into fact-checking techniques and explored the impact of misinformation on cultural, social, economic, and political spheres. The presenters emphasized that while technology plays a crucial role, it cannot replace human judgment. Valid sources such as government resources and public data were highlighted as essential for obtaining reliable information. The overarching message was encapsulated in the principles: Think, Decode, Differentiate, and Keep it Real. The event concluded with a vote of thanks by Rohitkrishna A, the President of the Sociology Students' Association at Sri Venkateswara College. The workshop successfully provided valuable insights and tools for navigating the digital landscape responsibly, fostering a sense of social responsibility and awareness among the participants.
