Report

Mr. Vineet Kedia talked about his journey at EY, how it shaped him as a person, opened up various industry exposures for him, allowing him to go beyond accounting, learn what valuation is, and gain a broader understanding of the financial landscape. He introduced the students to assurance and auditing by interacting with them for their input, making the session more engaging and insightful.

He touched upon the significance of financial statements in reflecting a company's performance, identifying whether it is true and fair, and understanding their role in decision-making. He also highlighted ESG assurance, how it is emerging in the present scenario, and its growing importance in the corporate world. Assurance, he explained, builds industry knowledge and provides a multi-faceted experience that extends beyond traditional auditing.

Additionally, he discussed the interconnection between valuation and auditing, the role of Gen AI in financial services, and how all of these topics are emerging within Assurance. He elaborated on how assurance helps a company list itself on the stock market and supports companies in overseas investing, making it a crucial function in today's financial ecosystem.

Mr. Kedia also shared insights into the distinguishing factors of EY from other firms, emphasizing the specialized training they offer, which sets them apart, and the ability of their leadership to think ahead and adapt to industry changes. The presence of sector-focused teams within EY makes it unique, allowing for deep expertise in various industries.

He concluded by offering valuable guidance on how to crack an interview, stressing the importance of having in-depth subject knowledge, strong technical clarity, active participation in extracurricular activities, and the demonstration of leadership skills. He further highlighted the significance of attitude in terms of preparedness, putting in effort to learn, continuously improving, and staying adaptable in a dynamic professional environment. The session concluded with a Q&A, addressing students' queries.
