BRIEF INFORMATION ABOUT THE ACTIVITY

TOPIC/SUBJECT OF THE ACTIVITY	National Conference on Gendered Stereotypes: Feminist Interventions
OBJECTIVES	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Analyze how gendered stereotypes manifest and impact individuals in both art and STEM fields, shaping identities, opportunities, and cultural narratives.Highlight the contributions of feminist artists, scientists, and thinkers who challenge gender norms, break barriers, and inspire change within their respective fields.Identify the challenges faced by women and marginalized groups in both art and STEM, such as bias, underrepresentation, and limited access.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • find solutions on how to dismantle stereotypes, support diversity, and foster equity across both arts and STEM.
METHODOLOGY	Each panel session began with structured presentations by expert speakers , who provided background, highlighted key issues, and shared personal insights and research findings. After the presentations, open-ended Q&A sessions allowed the audience to interact directly with the speakers. This dialogue helped expand discussions to include patriarchy and intersectionality.
INVITED SPEAKERS WITH AFFILIATION DETAILS (IF ANY)	Dr. Ritika Singh, Department of English, Sri Venkateswara College Dr Anita Cherian, Dr. B.R Ambedkar University, Delhi Taslina, Theatre Artist, Performer Dr Neeru Saini, Institute of Genomics and Integrative Biology, Delhi Prof Kalpana Luthra, All India Institute of Medical Sciences, New Delhi Prof N Latha, Sri Venkateswara College, Delhi
OUTCOMES	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Increased Awareness of Gender Bias Across Fields Attendees gained a deeper understanding of how gendered stereotypes permeate both art and STEM fields, shaping individual experiences and societal expectations. This awareness encouraged attendees to recognize and question these biases in their own environments. 2. Empowerment Through Knowledge and Representation By learning about the contributions and struggles of women and marginalized groups in both art and STEM (e.g., feminist artists, historical challenges in STEM), participants felt empowered to challenge gender norms and seek representation in their respective fields. 3. Development of a Supportive Community The conference facilitated connections among students, professionals, and activists from different disciplines, fostering a sense of community and solidarity. This network could provide ongoing support, mentorship, and collaboration opportunities for addressing gender issues. 4. Encouragement for Change Discussions on topics like workplace inclusivity, and intersectionality inspired participants for changes and creating a more equitable treatment of women and marginalized individuals in education and the workforce. 5. Practical Tools for Addressing Gender Stereotypes Participants left with actionable strategies, such as questioning patriarchal norms in all fields, promoting gender-inclusive practices, and applying feminist perspectives to challenge stereotypes. T

Brief Report:

On October 23, 2024, the Women’s Development Cell of Sri Venkateswara College, University of Delhi, held a national conference on Gendered Stereotypes: Feminist Interventions.

The first panel, Art, Gender, and Feminism, featured esteemed speakers Ritika Singh, Tasleema Sheikh, and Dr. Anita Cherian. In her address, Dr. Singh discussed themes from her book on the 1984 Anti-Sikh Riots, including concepts of "Power Rape" and the silencing of women. Tasleema Sheikh, emphasized the inseparable connection between art and feminism, drawing from her work on sexual and reproductive health. Dr. Cherian spoke about the evolution of gender roles in traditional Indian dance, including the shift from male-dominated practices to women’s participation following reforms in the 1930s. The panel concluded with a lively Q&A session on the role of patriarchy and dominance in gendered narratives.

The second panel, Recoding Gender Narratives in STEM, addressed the barriers women and trans people face due to gender roles and discrimination in academic and workplace settings. Dr. Neeru Saini opened with a presentation on how gender roles are instilled from a young age and discussed the lack of recognition for women scientists. She highlighted how workspaces, often designed for cis men, fail to meet the needs of women and other genders, and how discrimination persists in hiring and promotion due to issues like maternity leave. Dr. Kalpana Luthra stressed the need to empower women in rural areas and shared her experiences with workplace sexism, which resonated with many female professors present. Dr. N. Latha from SVC’s biochemistry department noted gradual progress in STEM, with women increasingly supporting one another and creating pathways for future generations.

The session concluded with an interactive discussion, where students and professors shared views on workplace responsibilities, gender roles, emphasizing the importance of questioning patriarchal norms in all fields.
