Brief Report:

The Women's Development Cell of Sri Venkateswara College conducted a menstrual health hygiene and management drive in the Sanjay Camp area of New Delhi on September 12, 2024. The event was attended by women and young girls across all age groups. A qualified doctor accompanied the student volunteers and professors to educate the people about the importance of proper menstrual hygiene, the disposal of sanitary pads, and the necessity of reducing the stigma around menstruation. Maintaining proper habits and cleanliness during the menstrual cycle was also emphasised. The people enthusiastically asked questions and engaged in discussion about the issue. The talk was followed by the distribution of sanitary napkins to all women present in the audience, ensuring accessibility to safe products. The campaign was covered by the Hindustan Times and reinforced the WDC's commitment to fostering a safer space for women across all communities.
