Alumni Webinar

The Economics Department

REPORT

The Economics Association of Sri Venkateswara College hosted an inspiring webinar titled "INSPIRE," featuring four distinguished alumni from the Class of 2004-2007 Economics (Hons). The virtual session, held on Zoom on October 5, 2025, brought together Gaurav Kohli, Managing Director at Ernst & Young, USA; Mallika Pung, Labor Economist at the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, USA; Neha Khanna, BSA at Apple Inc., USA; and Prachi Khanna, Principal Consultant at Korn Ferry, USA. This experience-sharing platform aimed to bridge generational gaps, offering current students a glimpse into global career trajectories in economics and beyond.

The event kicked off at 7:30 PM IST (10:00 AM EST and 7:00 AM PST) with a warm welcome from the Faculty Advisor Dr. Kanika Pathania who delivered an engaging speech on the transformative power of economics education. She highlighted how the department's rigorous curriculum has propelled alumni to leadership roles across continents, urging students to embrace adaptability and lifelong learning in an era of rapid globalization.

The Teacher-in-Charge, Mr. D. Brahma Reddy, then shared his insights, praising the alumni's commitment to giving back and reinforcing the college's ethos of community and excellence. With the stage set, the alumni were introduced one by one, each receiving a brief spotlight on their remarkable achievements: Gaurav's expertise in financial consulting at Ernst & Young, Mallika's advocacy for workplace equity through policy analysis, Neha's contributions to compliance and ethics at Apple, and Prachi's strategic talent management at Korn Ferry. This prelude built anticipation, showcasing their diverse paths from Delhi's classrooms to international boardrooms.

Each alumnus was allotted five minutes to share their experiences, blending personal anecdotes with professional milestones. Gaurav Kohli recounted his transition from academic theory to high-stakes advisory roles, stressing the importance of ethical decision-making in global finance. Mallika Pung shared her passion for labor economics, detailing how data-driven insights combat inequality and foster inclusive workplaces. Neha Khanna discussed navigating tech's ethical landscapes at Apple, emphasizing resilience amid innovation pressures. Prachi Khanna wrapped up with tales from executive search, highlighting networking's role in career pivots.

The session transitioned into a moderated Q&A, where four selected students posed targeted questions to their respective alumni, voicing common undergraduate concerns like career pivots, work-life balance, and skill-building for international opportunities. Responses were candid and practical, demystifying doubts and offering tailored advice on everything from pursuing advanced degrees abroad to handling cultural shifts in multicultural teams.

The principal, Prof. Vejala Ravi, joined midway to express profound gratitude for the alumni's time and wisdom, noting how such interactions enrich the college's legacy. The webinar concluded with Mr. D. Brahma Reddy's vote of thanks, where he lauded the panel for their generosity in sharing experiences, insights, and knowledge, inspiring the next generation to dream big. Participants left motivated, armed with actionable takeaways.
