REPORT

The Economics Association organised the Cheistha Kochhar Annual Memorial Lecture as a special speaker session to honour the memory of Cheistha Kochhar, an alumna of the college who is remembered for her curiosity, initiative, and warmth. The lecture was delivered by Mr Dilip Chenoy, founding MD and CEO of NSDC, former Secretary General of FICCI, and former Director General of SIAM, on the theme "Campus to Careers: What Actually Works."

During the lecture, Mr Chenoy spoke about the idea of lifelong learning and stressed that growth does not stop with a degree. He shared personal anecdotes about Cheistha Kochhar, highlighting how her initiative and genuine curiosity created opportunities and left a lasting impression on the people she met. He noted that recruiters today look beyond grades and focus on skills, consistency, and the ability to keep learning and adapting.

Using relatable and humorous examples, including references to popular films, he emphasised that real learning comes from continuous effort and hands-on experience, not just adding credentials to a CV. He encouraged students to build relevant skills, stay curious, and keep upgrading themselves in ways aligned with their chosen fields. The session was insightful and motivating, leaving students with practical takeaways on preparing for meaningful careers.
